1. Friday: July 15th
11.00 o'clock a.m.

Good morning, Deian,

Last night,
after pulling the mask
off
the person in the gorilla suit
I had a shock
to see that it was Sioned Roberts
(there) –
the friendly girl
(that) I spoke with
at the Twin Oaks office on Monday.

I looked deep into her eyes.
“Why did you put
a banana skin
on the stage tonight
under Alis Angharad's feet?”
I asked.

“Why....?”
she said.
“Why....?”
Because .....
.....
.....”

“Well, whatever
the reason

am dy weithredoedd”
medde fi,
“y gyfraith yw’r gyfraith
a byddi di’n treulio’r noson
mewn cell oer
heno.”

A dyna ni, Deian.
Mae fy wythnos o wyliau
bellach
ar ben.
Nôl â fi
i’r swyddfa Ddydd Llun
i ddatrys mwy o ddirgelion
a dal
mwy o ddrwgweithredwyr.
Ond bydda i’n siwr
o ddod nôl
i Ganolfan Dwy Dderwen eto.
Wedi’r cyfan,
mae rhywbeth ’mlân yma
trwy’r amser.
Dych chi’n gallu
cerdded, loncian, rhedeg neu seiclo dringo, abseilio, rhwyfo neu nofio.

Ac maen nhw’n gwneud
tarten geirios hollol ansbaradigaethus yma.

Hwyl am y tro,

Dilwyn

Y Diwedd

for you actions”
said I
“the law is the law
and you’ll be spending the evening
in a cold cell
tonight.”

And there we have it, Deian.
Mae week of holidays
is now
over.
It’s back to the office for me on Monday to solve more mysteries
and catch
more criminals.
But I’ll be sure
to return to the Twin Oaks Centre again.
After all,
there’s something on here
all the time.
You can walk, jog, run or cycle
climb, abseil, row or swim.

And they make
a damn fine cherry pie
here.

Bye for now,

Dilwyn

The End
